Personnel is Named for The Authority, and Incorporation is To Be Sought; Resolution Creating Authority is Released for Publication.

TULLYTOWN, Mar. 11 — With one member absent Tullytown Borough Council last evening unanimously adopted a resolution creating a water and sewer authority, designated "The Levittown authority."

Portions of the resolution reads: "Whereas the council of the Borough of Tullytown deems it necessary for the benefit and preservation of the public health, peace, comfort and general welfare of the residents of the borough and of the territories adjacent thereto, that an authority be formed by this municipality under the provisions of the municipal authorities act of 1945."

Those named to the authority are Walter W. Weynich, 5 years; William Hill, four years; William McKay, three years; Charles Luciano, two years; William L. Leigh, one year.

Advertising of the authority is expected to be placed within the next few days with subsequent incorporation. Council decided to have safety lines painted on the streets and to have speed-limit signs erected. Due to illness, Harry June, was unable to attend.

The resolution reads: "RESOLUTIONS WHEREAS, the Council of the Borough of Tullytown deems it necessary for the benefit and preservation of the public health, peace,

Mrs. E. J. Laing Found Dead at Her Residence

Death occurred suddenly yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Beatrice May Laing (nee Priestley), Newport road, Bristol township. A neighbor paying a call at the Laing residence in mid-afternoon, found Mrs. Laing's lifeless body on the kitchen floor. It is presumed that she was fatally stricken while preparing her lunch an hour or two previous.

Cause of death, according to the Deputy Coroner, Dr. William L. Goldfarb, was coronary occlusion.

Mrs. Laing had appeared to be in good health, having returned from Florida a few days ago.

The deceased was born in Bristol 61 years ago, and had lived in Bristol borough and Bristol township throughout her life-time. Daughter of the late William H. and Elizabeth Priestley, she is survived by her husband, Dr. Edward J. Laing; two sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Margaret Bean, Stratford, Conn., Miss Marjorie Priestley, Edward and William Priestley, of Bristol.

Mrs. Laing was a member of Bristol Meeting of Friends.

There will be no viewing. Interment is arranged for four o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Friends burial ground, here, it being from the funeral home of John C. Black. A memorial service is arranged for Sunday, March 16th, at two p. m., in the Friends Meeting House, Wood and Market streets.

ADMINISTERING OXYGEN

Mrs. Sozio, 415 Washington street, is receiving oxygen from equipment of Bucks County Rescue Squad. The squad transported Mrs. Atlyn Owens, 1022 Trenton avenue, to Abington Hospital yesterday, and Mrs. Mary Schoen, Oxford Valley and Hulmeville roads, Falls township, to Abington Hospital.

CLEANING OUT THE CROOKS

President Truman's blast at Congress, refusing to permit his departments to release the information which might lead to trapping the thieves in his administration, is enough to make cynics laugh and angels weep.

If anyone in this broad land still thought that the President was in earnest in his pretense of wanting to help clean out the crooks and punish the pilferers, this new statement should open their eyes.

The fact is that the crooks and cronies at Washington "never had it so good." They have their feet in the trough, billions of dollars of YOUR money is passing through their hands, and when the situation becomes too much for the stomachs of everyone else, there is still President Truman, with his warped sense of loyalty, to stand between them and retribution.

The President has crippled many efforts to ferret out the sellers of favors and the plunderers of public resources, but never has he struck a more devastating blow than this.

Remember the facts — they are simple and easy to understand. The Congressional probers called upon the departments of government to furnish a list of cases which had been referred to the Department of Justice, and then either tossed in the waste basket there, or delayed for long periods of time.

Since the question being investigated was whether the Department of Justice was being honestly run, that was the obvious (and in fact, almost the only) approach to the truth.

But President Truman put his foot down. He refused to allow the information to be turned over to Congress. This, he said, represented a "dragnet" method — let Congress investigate "specific" cases. But how can

ADVISES SAVING FOR A TRIP TO THE MOON

Dr. Ehrlicke Says Such is Entirely Within Realm of Possibility

AID FROM SATELLITE

Trips to the moon or Mars are "entirely within the realm of possibility" in the lifetime of present generations in the opinion of guided missile expert Dr. Kraft A. Ehrlicke. Following is the second of two articles by International News Service staff correspondent Hugh L. Morris, based on an interview with Dr. Ehrlicke, former German scientist now at the U. S. Army's Redstone Arsenal Research Center.

By Hugh L. Morris
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Mar. 11 — (INS) — If you are young and adventurous, one of the world's outstanding guided missile authorities advises you to start saving your pennies for a trip to the moon.

In the opinion of Dr. Kraft A. Ehrlicke, wartime German V-2 expert now at the U. S. Army's Redstone Arsenal Development Center, an excursion to the moon or Mars is "entirely within the realm of possibility" in the lifetime of present generations.

What's more, Dr. Ehrlicke, now 34 years old, fully expects to be a passenger on the first space ship to go literally "out of this world." Dr. Ehrlicke envisions, as a start-up point for inter-planetary travel, the erection of an artificial satellite in St. James parish house.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Cuba, land of sugar cane and revolts, experienced a new revolution when former President, Gen. Fulgencio Batista, ousted President Carlos Prío Socarrás in a near-bloodless coup. General Batista, called Cuba's "strong man," seized army headquarters, all fortresses and police stations in Havana in much the same manner that he had done in ousting the Machado regime in 1933. Ever since that time Cuba has sought peace, order and economic betterment. Washington had had no indication that General Batista had planned a coup.

Retaliating "reluctantly" for curbs placed by the Soviet Union on the travel of American diplomats, this country restricted the movement of Soviet personnel to areas within a 25-mile radius of Washington and New York, except on forty-eight hours' prior notice. Other Western nations took similar action. The Kremlin handed American, British and French representatives in Moscow a new note, presumably on Germany.

Allied truce negotiators in Korea charged the Soviet Union with arming North Korean and Chinese forces with a wide variety of weapons. In the fighting, Allied jets brought down seven enemy MIG's and damaged three.

Newbold Morris named Morton Baum of New York his chief aide in the investigation into corruption

SELF-EMPLOYED NEED S. S. ACCT NUMBERS

With Income Tax Deadline Near, Should Obtain Them at Once

TO RECEIVE CREDIT

With only a few days remaining for the filing of income tax returns, all self-employed persons who need social security account numbers should obtain them immediately. This advice was given today by Ruben R. Bilane, manager of the social security office in the Trenton Post Office Building.

Blane said that unless the account number is recorded on the income tax return, those who work for themselves may not receive social security credits for their earnings and as a result, their future benefits may be reduced.

He explained that the new law covered all self-employed persons on a compulsory basis except operators of farms, physicians, dentists, lawyers, osteopaths, chiropractors, optometrists, naturopaths, veterinarians, architects, professional engineers, accountants, funeral directors, and Christian Science practitioners.

Self-employed persons under social security will have the same

Demonstrates Photography To Boys' Brigade Members

A demonstrated lecture on the fundamentals of photography was presented Thursday night by William A. Painter, of Philadelphia, to the members of the Bristol Boys' Brigade. This was given in the Calvary Baptist Church as a part of the regular program arranged for boys 12 through 18 years of age.

The Bristol Boys' Brigade features a weekly two-hour program consisting of various projects. At the present time they are working on leather wallets, knot-tying, first-aid, and sign-making, as well as some smaller interests. The work period is followed by a recreation period during which the boys enjoy weight-lifting, basketball, and table games of skill.

Mr. Painter showed the boys how a camera works, how to take pictures, what happens when the light rays hit the negative, and how a photograph is made. Thursday night he will demonstrate by the use of trays, a photographic printer, and an enlarger, what really happens when a picture is developed and how to enlarge a picture.

The organization has recently added three new members to its group.

Bristol News Agency Broken Into and Robbed

The Bristol News Agency at the Penna. R. R. passenger station was broken into sometime during the night. Twenty cartons of cigarettes and approximately $20 in cash is reported to have been stolen.

Police say that entrance was gained through the rear of the building by means of a trap door. Police Officer Chichiletti is investigating.

NO HEIRS LISTED FOR THE ESTATE OF JOHN W. ELLIS

Letters of Administration Granted to John J. Fitzgerald

THE LONG ESTATE

Late Ivyland Woman Leaves $1,000 to Church at Hartsville

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 11 — John J. Fitzgerald, Yardley, was granted letters of administration in the estate of John Wm. Ellis, Upper Makefield township, amounting to $500. There are no heirs, and the decedent died Dec. 27, 1951, leaving a vacant lot in Solebury township. Neshaminy Presbyterian Church of Warwick, Hartsville, was bequeathed $1,000 by M. Elta Long, Ivyland, whose will was probated in the Register of Wills Office, here. The testatrix, who died Jan. 15, left an estate of $7,000. She bequeathed $500 in trust to the Neshaminy Presbyterian Church of Warwick Cemetery Company. The will was dated July 17, 1950.

Mrs. M. Blanche Smith, Atlantic City, was given permission to take jewelry and clothing which she had given to the testatrix, Susan Starkey, Ivyland; Anna Titus, Glenside; Hazel Carr, Hathboro, and Marie Carr, Rushland, were bequeathed antiques, clothing, jewelry and household effects. Susan Starkey, Ivyland, was also named the residuary beneficiary. Jenkintown National Bank & Trust Company was named co-executor with Lewis Starkey, Ivyland.

In a pencil-written, holographic codicil, on a small note of paper, Lilli M. Haldeman, Doylestown, bequeathed $100 to her church which was not designated by a formal name.

The testatrix, who died Jan. 7, left a $1400 estate. She stipulated that her family relies be sold. She also gave $100 to the Point Pleasant Cemetery Co. Four children, Raymond, Alice, Frank and Otis Haldeman, were named heirs in the will which was dated Nov. 28, 1945.

75 MORE TEACHERS NEEDED IN SCHOOLS

They Will Be Required To Teach At Levittown

2,000 MORE PUPILS

Seventy-five additional teachers will be required to take care of the influx of 2,000 pupils who will be moving into Levittown during 1952, County School Authorities announced this morning.

An accurate tabulation of the children in all families who have already purchased new homes in Levittown reveals that while there is less than 3 of a child of elementary school age per house, there are twice as many children of preschool age. It would appear that within six years the first 5,000 homes will have over 4,000 children of elementary school age.

Falls Township will lead the school districts in the number of houses in the 1952 Levittown program with 500 units more than Bristol Township. Bristol Township is expected to have around 1800 units. Middletown will have 500 new homes and Tullytown about 300.

Mrs. Howard Price, Red Cross Chairman, Organizes The Area

DISTRICTS OUTLINED

Lewis H. Kirk, retired Drexel Hill businessman, has been named chairman of the South East Area of Pennsylvania for the 1952 Cancer Crusade to be conducted during April, the month so designated by act of Congress, it was announced today in Harrisburg by the Pennsylvania Division, American Cancer Society.

The announcement was made by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, President of Pennsylvania State College, who is serving this year as State Chairman for the Cancer Crusade which has a goal of $880,000. The funds will be used by the Cancer Society to continue its three-pronged attack on cancer through research, education and service.

Plans for the area fund-raising effort were made at a meeting held at Drexel Hill, on Friday. County campaign chairmen and local volunteer workers attended

BRISTOL COUNCIL ADOPTS TENTATIVE BUDGET ON FIRST READING; CALLS FOR A ONE-MILL INCREASE IN THE TAX RATE, THIS TO BE FOR RECREATIONAL PURPOSES

Council Proceedings To Be Wire Recorded

Proceedings of Bristol Borough Council are to be wire-recorded. This was decided upon, last evening, when S. Joseph Aita, II, complained that the minutes of council meetings are not sufficiently elaborated. Aita, specifically, referred to the last meeting, when he thought the secretary, Mrs. Agnes Coles, should have elaborated more upon some of the discussions held in council.

Council voted to have the price of a wire recorder investigated, and to procure one. The secretary will then transcribe her minutes from the wire record.

BENNER'S CATTLE

Thirty-One Registered Holsteins Put On the Auction Block

EQUIPMENT ALSO SOLD

LANGHORNE, Mar. 11 — Almost 500 people attended an auction at the Linford C. Benner farm on Hulmeville road, east of Rt. 150, yesterday, as buyers from as far away as Delaware and Connecticut bid on Benner's pure Holstein herd, his equipment and his buildings. Everything except the land and Benner's house was for sale yesterday. Benner's 73-acre farm was purchased by Levitt and Sons, Inc., on Dec. 29, 1951.

Thirty-one registered Holsteins, including two heifers and two bulls, were sold at the auction for a total of $14,950. Largest buyer of the day was Herman K. Kuthe, of Neshanic, N. J., who purchased 12 for $6,985.

R. Austin Backus, Mexico, N. Y., professional auctioneer covering 12 states, handled the sale. Mr. Backus stated: "The Holsteins sold for an average of $515. This is very high, but in keeping with the high standard of the herd."

Frank Coffey, Newtown, purchased Wimbledon Bonheur Emperor Lad, a 6-year-old bull, for $640. Thomas Civiely, Salem, N. J.; Cas-

QUALIFICATIONS LOWERED

S/Sgt. James M. Major, of the local recruiting office, announced today that the basic qualifications for a person to apply for training as an aviation cadet within the United States Air Force has been lowered to a high school graduate. This move was taken in order to obtain more men between 18 and 24 for flying training, because these ages are more physically adept to requirements of flying the high speed aircraft of today. The only clause is that the initial application must be made from within the service. That means that the man must be in the service at the time of application.

Any young men who are not married and are high school graduates should contact S/Sgt. Major at the Recruiting office, municipal building, for information.

DIRECTORS TO MEET

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Mar. 11 — The board of directors of Bensalem Alumni Association will hold a meeting tomorrow at eight p. m. Graduates of the class of 1926 are invited to attend and discuss an April reunion, scheduled for that class. A general alumni meeting will be held Apr. 16th.

Model Planes in Air

Sound Like Bee Swarms

Sunday's spring-like weather brought members of Bristol Aeromodelers out for a Sunday afternoon model plane flying session on the Hunter-Wilson field in full force with three or more model planes powered by small two cycle gasoline engines, in the air simultaneously the area sounded like an angry hive of bees. A crowd of several hundred spectators was on hand.

Most of the flying was done by control-line type model planes. Control-line is so called because the models are flown on long stainless steel wires which transmit controls from the model pilot to the model so that any type of maneuver except rolls may be accomplished.

Several crack-ups took place among the models flown because of damaged or kinked wires that either jammed together or snapped during flight. Over-eager spectators often fail to observe these thin wires lying on the ground and frequently become ensnared in them with resultant kinks and damage to the model plane's control system.

A most spectacular display of model "combat" flying was performed by Henry Weller, Albert Abrams, Sr., and Charles Bahr. In this display ten foot paper streamers were attached to the tail of each model and all planes were put into flight at once. Each model pilot tried to "attack" the streamers of the other models with the propeller of his craft and at the same time evading the "attacks" of other planes. Everything in this display went fine until Weller's craft struck Abrams' wing with its propeller causing Abrams to dive into Bahr's model which lost nearly an entire wing panel in the accident. He was able to complete his flight and bring down his craft to a smooth landing much to the surprise of the watching crowd.

Club leader members were pleased to see the number of young model enthusiasts who turned out with airworthy craft.

These flying sessions will be held each week-end until May, when outdoor club meetings will be held on Wednesday evenings, and Sundays will be spent at nearby contests.

Names of Two Merchants Turned Over to Police After Garbage is Placed on Borough Dump — Council is Urged to Enforce Health Law and Have Privies Removed — Discuss Water Situation, Use of Police Officer in Painting Yellow "No Parking" Lines.

Bristol borough council, last evening, adopted upon first reading a tentative budget. This will now be on display in the office of the borough secretary, where those who are interested may view it. It will come up at the April meeting for final adoption.

The budget will require a 17-mill tax rate, one mill more than last year. The extra mill will be for recreation purposes as advocated by Burgess I. J. Hetherington, Sr., and which council voted some months ago. There will be 13 mills for general purposes, three for sinking fund purposes.

All members of council were present with the exception of Francis Kryven, who was taken ill previous to the session after arriving at the municipal building.

The Rev. Andrew G. Solla, of the Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour, offered the opening prayer.

In reporting for the health and sanitation committee, R. T. Myers, chairman, asked Nicholas Pasquale to read minutes of the meetings of that committee. It was reported that the Danherst Corporation is paying the borough $200 per month for discharging the effluence from Fairless Hills into the Bristol borough sewer system. The agreement calls for a charge of $10 per day for less than a month's use of the system.

Mr. Myers also stated that merchants are dumping garbage on the borough dump. This is being done after dark, he said, and the names of two merchants have been turned over to the police for investigation. Prosecution will follow, Mr. Myers said, unless the practice is stopped at once.

The reading of the annual report of the board of health brought forth comment from Dennis J. Roche that it was about time for the borough to rid the fourth ward of privies. He said there are at least five in the ward. Roche said that the health officer, Dr. William A. Groof, is doing a good job, but he urged council to enforce the law where it is supposed to and have the privies removed. The health and sanitation committee was instructed by council to use every method at its disposal to enforce the health laws.

The instances complained of are where borough council, having received the report of the health board, has the authority to have

Storm Does Damage Here

The high wind and rain storm sweeping out of the south-east did considerable damage in the Bristol area today. Lowlands were flooded, tree limbs and rain spouting ripped off. A large cinder block wall at the plant of Kaiser Metal Products, Inc. collapsed.

High water in the Delaware River is scheduled for mid-afternoon, and river front residences in some sections are apprehensive.

The wall on Kaiser property was being erected by McClain Construction Company, Philadelphia. Of cinder block construction it was to form the north-west wall of the new aircraft assembly building. The portion which fell outward measured about 200 feet long, and 10 feet high, according to John Trauger, estimator for the McClain Co. He states that the wall had been erected about one month ago, and was only partially built. No workmen were on the job this morning due to the rain. The strong wind forced the wall over with a reverberating crash. Loss is estimated by Trauger at $3500 to $4000, this including material and workmanship. No trusses had been placed as yet.

Water was quite deep on North Radcliffe street near the eastern end of the Kaiser Corp. plant, and automobiles proceeded with difficulty.

GIRL WITH CHARACTER

The first "canvases" the late Howard Chandler Christy ever had, according to one newspaper biography, was the door of his father's barn in Morgan County, O. What the young man painted there the obituary didn't say. But everybody who was old enough to notice in the days when the illustrator was on the heights can recall what he put on the nation's magazine covers and many of their inside pages. The Christy Girl, no less.

She followed the Gibson Girl, the creation of Charles Dana Gibson, who was the idol of young American manhood around the turn of the century—and who continues to pop up in the fashions time and again after all these years.

There may have been a Fisher Girl in between, or perhaps she came later. No matter. It was the Christy Girl who really inherited the crown. And she deserved it.

"The biographies describe that vision in her first appearances. She wore a bustle and a high-necked shirt-waist. These items of attire disappeared early in her long day. But whatever she wore she had a certain distinction. Christy himself said she was high-bred and aristocratic and dainty, though not always silken-skirted—a woman "with a tremendous self-respect." She was not a lass with a delicate air, though the word "lady" then still had some connotations that are now lost.

What she had was something downright American in her make-up. She was the kind of American girl who acts as though she is beautiful whether she is or not—and thereby achieves an appeal not to be attributed to face or figure. Christy felt she was more than a pretty girl. He insisted that real beauty comes from character. That is something many artists never learn, though it is no secret. It may have been the explanation for his success as an illustrator.

WHITE TIRES AGAIN

Predictions from Washington are to the effect that white sidewall tires, the de luxe type, will be officially sanctioned by June 1. Manufacture of this line of tires was ordered halted a year and a half ago to conserve natural rubber.

With rubber sticking out of the government's ears, and the price of the natural product weakening, this restriction will probably be removed after several hundreds of persons on the government payroll engage in research, investigation and issue voluminous reports on the subject.

Why not just bypass the statistics boys and let the rubber industry decide what kinds of tires it wants to produce? The rubber is available for white sidewall or any other type of tires, in any quantity the public demands.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 11 — If there ever was an example of carrying coals to Newcastle, it was a recent State Department report labeling present leaders of the Greek government corrupt.

Look who is talking. There are now well over 100 U. S. government officials who have been fired, have resigned or have been suspended from their jobs for corrupt practices ranging from outright thievery to petty pilfering from the gift racks of five per centers. And the various Congressional investigations and independent probes are just getting warmed up.

Actually, in hanging a corruption rap on Greek government officials, the State Department was simply performing old tricks. It is standard operating procedure for Secretary of State Dean Acheson's Muscovite stooges in the department to find something wrong with every government that displays any friendship for the U. S. A.—with the exception of the British.

Only those with short memories in politics will fail to recall the treatment accorded Chiang Kai-Shek by the State Department when his back was to the wall in his battle with the Chinese Communists. Chiang was called corrupt and worse, and all of his aides and assistants were relegated to the criminal class by the stuffed shirts in the State Department.

The same thing happened to Philippine government officials when they were in the midst of trying to restore order in the islands after World War II. The Communist-led Hukbs were trying to take over the government and they almost succeeded after a big propaganda boost from a special U. S. mission which labeled all the loyal leaders as thieves and worse.

Nobody, of course, except those sharing the loot, can condone corruption. But it seems odd that only anti-Communist governments get splattered by the State Department.

The Greeks are still hard at work rebuilding their country and trying to keep the Communists from creeping back across the border. They need our help, instead of our insults, and if there is any corruption it will be up to the elected government to weed out the thieves. It may take time, just as it did in the U. S., before honest officials catch up with the crooks. But it will happen, just as it did here, despite Presidential descriptions of clean-up efforts as "casualty."

The State Department added a new twist to its slander of the friendly Greek officials, who are cooperating 100 per cent with us in trying to ward off Communist aggression. This gimmick comprised preparation of a confidential report at the American embassy in Athens, in which all Greek political leaders were described as corrupt, and subsequent "leakage" of the report to the Communists. They, of course, promptly started flaying loyal Greek leaders with its words.

The facts concerning the incident were revealed at a current spy trial at Athens. Twenty-nine Communists are on trial, charged with running a Soviet-financed underground in Greece. The most prominent Red, Nicholas Beloyannis, has admitted the existence of the underground. But he also said on the witness stand:

"A well-known Rightist whose name I cannot disclose gave us a confidential report of the American Embassy—in which all Greek political leaders were described as corrupt."

Washington State Department officials shudder, groan and cry "fool" every time Senator Joseph R. McCarthy or someone else comes up with a confidential document revealing another Red on the payroll. Yet, at the American Embassy in Athens, it is all right to scatter confidential documents around among their Communist friends for use against Greek government officials whose biggest error apparently is trying to help the United States fight the Communists.

It was the same with Chinese and Philippine government officials. Chiang Kai-Shek caught it the worst, of course. He was then in dire need of more U. S. money and military equipment and the issue was before Congress. When the State Department dropped its "fool" bundle there was an immediate hne and cry from the capital hill. State Department mouthpieces in Congress lathered the air with anti-Chiang charges. This only encouraged the Communists to keep on trying.

Maybe that is what the Russian lovers in the State Department want the Greek Communists to do. Until a better explanation comes along this one will have to do.

rights as an employee covered by the law. When he retires at age 65 or later, he and his family may receive monthly insurance benefits. No matter what his age at the time of his death, however, his survivors may receive payments also. As in the case of employees, the self-employed must be covered long enough under the law to qualify.

The following table for estimating monthly payments is based on average earnings for at least two years after 1950:

Average Monthly Earnings	Retirement Payment	Widow's Benefit	Widow's Child
$ 50.00	$25.00	$37.50	$18.50

Talbot Presents "Voice And The Personality"

NEWTOWN, Mar. 11—"Voice and the Personality" was presented by John Talbot, English instructor at George School for last 18 years, at the dinner meeting of Newtown Exchange Club, Thursday evening, in the Temperance House.

"Today," said Mr. Talbot, "too much emphasis is placed on writing and too little on speech." The voice has an hypnotic effect on some people, and an emotional effect on others. Radio has helped greatly as a medium of persuasion in presenting popular opinions, particularly in elections, the power of swaying being very evident in many voices. Now, with television, we may see as well as hear our proponents. Mr. Talbot had with him recordings of various personalities in demonstration of their ability to sway audiences. He demonstrated with various of the club members, recording their voice, and then playing it back.

Gildo Sissoldo was the guest of Robert Hunt, Robert McClanen, Richboro, and James Tate were welcomed as new members.

F. Stewart Whittam, conducted

the business meeting, 27 attending.

The committee for the March programs include Clarence Krewson, chairman; Paul Blanshard, Jr., Robert Steele, Preston Van Artsdalen.

How to save time on Long Distance Calls

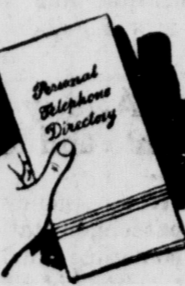

CALL BY NUMBER

Fast as Long Distance is these days, it is even faster when you place your calls by number, rather than giving the name and address of the party you want to reach.

The time you save on a single call may not seem important. But when you realize that millions of such calls are being placed every day, you will quickly see that the total time saved is a vital contribution to the Nation's defense effort.

We'd like to handle all your out-of-town calls this time-saving way. You'll find that calling by number will be easier if you keep a record of the out-of-town numbers you have occasion to call. We have prepared a convenient Personal Telephone Directory in which to list such numbers. If you'd like a copy, just ask the Business Office for one.

When you call by number your calls go through faster... often twice as fast.

they get a line on specific cases, if the door is thus slammed in their face?

They did want specific cases — they wanted those cases where responsible persons in the government, working under Mr. Truman, and after investigating the facts, agreed that criminal prosecutions were in order, and so notified the Attorney General — only to have the prosecution called off for reasons never revealed, but which, in innumerable cases, almost certainly involve payoffs and political favoritism.

This is about as crooked as a government can get. No wonder the thieves are having a field day! No wonder the Pendergast cronies and their pals think Truman is wonderful!

What can the American people do about it?

That question promptly leads to another — what was the machinery set up under the Constitution whereby it was intended that organized stealing condoned and protected by the Executive Branch of government might be smashed up and cleaned out?

There are three fairly obvious approaches, quite aside from the investigative and legislative power of Congress. One is the Department of Justice itself. Its original purpose was to be an administration policeman, routing out the crooks and sending the thieves to jail. But today it is the Department of Justice which is accused of being crooked. It has sold itself out, so far as the people are concerned, and become a wing of the political party in power.

Second great policing agency intended by the writers of the Constitution was the Federal system of courts—the judiciary. In such a quarrel as that presently existing, where Congress accuses the President of misusing his powers to protect crooks merely because they are friends or political supporters of his, it was once assumed that the judiciary would be available to pass upon the law and help expose the plunderers.

But the courts have gone political. They have yielded up their high status of "watchdogs of the Constitution," and turned into little more than catspaws for the executive. They are not available for the task of routing gangsters out of the government.

Third great weapon which, as the Constitution was first conceived, would be available to the people, would be the right of impeachment, as used by the people's own (and only) direct representatives in the government—the national Congress. But for a host of reasons, it is wholly impractical to consider impeaching a president, no matter how far short he falls of meeting his responsibilities; and next to impossible to impeach a high Federal official, no matter how much he deserves it.

Is there then no means by which the American people who disbelieve in thievery in their national government, who despise those who are guilty of it and have nothing but contempt for those who stand between the rascals and their exposure and punishment, can restore their government to the high standards it should maintain?

There is one way, and at the moment, perhaps only one way.

That way is to put every candidate for the Presidency, every man whose name is suggested seriously for that assignment, "on the line" on the question. Then elect a man who can and will clean out the crooks.

Let the American electorate find out where each candidate stands — not on mere abstractions, not solely on the generality of whether his intentions are good; good intentions are like Faith without Works, and are well described as the paving material to the Bad Place.

But let's have an expression, categorical and comprehensive, on something much more definite than being "against sin."

Let's hear where the candidates stand on what they would do to keep their associates honest, and how they would go about punishing them if they went wrong.

Let's find out how much each of the candidates knows about the machinery of Federal government, the means by which stealing is committed and the devices by which it can be prevented. At least two Presidents — Grant and Harding — who might have been successful otherwise, suffered serious disrepute because they didn't know enough about the routine of government affairs to keep control of their friends.

And let's find out just how these candidates feel about the record-breaking corruption now so rampant in Washington. Are they against it? Have they done anything to try to curb it? Would they be willing to stand up to President Truman and publicly indict him for the base manner in which he has shielded the culprits at every turn?

As for Truman, one cannot help but be reminded of the famous lines attributed to Cardinal Wolsey, and expressed by Shakespeare thus:

"Had I but served my God with half the zeal
I served my king, he would not in mine age
Have left me naked to mine enemies."

Had Truman but served the American people with half the zeal he has served the crooks and cronies, he would not today be defenseless against the scorn and contempt by honest-minded American citizens.

A Problem Teachers Face

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

SOME gifted experts and writers advising teachers say we must face reality; and yet these very same advisers seem often to run the fastest away from reality.

If all our teachers could be highly trained professionally, if all classrooms could be limited to 20 or 25 children, if very few mothers worked away from home, and if all children were well-disciplined at home, we might well go on urging elementary teachers to put less emphasis at school on order and give children there more and more freedom.

But even with 40, 50 or 60 children in a classroom, a very gifted teacher is able to reach most of these children most of the time. She might even find time to have individual conferences with the parents of these children. But the average teacher, even if she graduated from a modern teachers college, just can't be expected to measure up to the fine ways which look so nearly perfect when we hear or read about them.

Indeed, some of the experts who picture ideal ways for teachers might not be able to follow their own instructions. Most of the advisers of teachers in our schools of education and teachers colleges are constantly applying their theories under almost ideal conditions—small classes, ample equipment, and selected pupils, as a rule.

The girl filled with fine theories and seeing them applied by highly-selected, gifted teachers, may soon be disillusioned when she goes out to teach in a crowded, poorly-equipped classroom; and such classrooms are becoming the rule rather than the exception.

the necessary work done and file liens against the properties. Some of the properties are state owned. It was said, and already have liens against them. Most of these are located on Spruce street.

William Wallace, chairman of water committee, asked council to give his committee authority to request federal financial assistance for rehabilitation of the water plant or the building of a new one. "We are still turning down requests for water," Wallace said. "Some are along our present pipe lines."

Wallace reviewed the contacting of Councilman Carl C. King by Burgess Hetherington, and the quick action given by King in making contact with the federal agency which has authority to financially aid critical defense areas in providing community facilities. He spoke of representatives of the agency coming to Bristol and the discussion which was held at that time. He spoke of meeting with Rohm & Haas Co. representatives in an effort to obtain their water re-

Moreover, there are coming to the classroom year by year, more and more children who haven't learned the alphabet of self-control or the ABC's of conformity at home.

I wish those who train teachers and fill them with fine theories would themselves face up more squarely to reality and stop telling these young women they need not give concern to discipline if they apply the new ways of freedom. Why not recognize the practical necessity of some conformities?

Need for Quiet

Certainly there are numerous times in the classroom when all the children need to cease from talking aloud and need to be still enough for the teacher to give directions and instructions meant for all the children present; times, too, when the individual children might concentrate more effectively without undue distractions. For a teacher to try to talk above the din of children's voices when she desires all of them to hear her can't be whole-some then or good preparation for these children when they later join voluntary groups like the Scouts, a church choir or Bible Class.

Yet with some desirable regulations established, it should be much easier to carry on simultaneously certain group activities with considerable freedom, even with what some of us might label as noise. We can help these teachers, of course, through reasonable discipline of our children in our homes. (My bulletin, "How Parents Can Help their Children Succeed at School," may be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper.)

Justice of the Peace Anthony Niccol paid to the borough the sum of $160 in collections and fines, and to the state $120. Councilmen complimented Niccol for thus handling the fines collected. Councilman Joseph Ferry moved a vote of thanks to Justice of the Peace Niccol, and asked why reports are not received from other justices.

Joseph DeLissio, chairman of the street committee, presented five requests for signs and all were approved. He said that the committee is planning to draw up a new sign ordinance, and stated that the request of the police committee to remove some parking meters on Pond near Market street have been refused. He also stated that the request of Bristol-Harriman Business Men's Association that streets in the business district of that section be cleaned bi-weekly, was granted. The committee was authorized to purchase a used bulldozer upon the approval of Borough Engineer Livingston Joyce for use on the dump.

Councilman Ferry, chairman of the fire committee, announced that a fire school had opened March 3rd and was attended by approximately 30 men. He complimented the firemen for having this school, and reported that all the apparatus is in serviceable condition.

Francis J. Byers, president of council and chairman of finance and public property committee, told council the committee had had three meetings to compile the budget. He said that the committee was dissatisfied with the collection of the amusement tax, and thought that more money could be obtained from this source. The figures he quoted showed a decrease last year of approximately $6,000. The ordinance was amended by council, which will transfer the collection of the amusement tax from the office of the secretary back to the borough treasurer. The treasurer had originally collected this tax and then council had put it in the office of the secretary. It now goes back to the treasurer.

Byers informed council he thought it was a possibility that State approval could be obtained for the placing of a traffic light at Bath street and Route No. 13. A request to do this sometime ago had been refused by the state. Council will now file a new request.

Councilman Aita, of the civil service commission, stated three applicants had taken the examination for borough police officer. Only one of the three, he said, Julius Sabol, qualified.

The resignation of John L. Killoyne, as borough solicitor, was received and accepted, and upon motion of Councilman Roche, John P. Fullam, Esq., was elected.

Council voted to transfer the office of Justice of the Peace Niccol into the office now occupied by the army recruiting sergeant, who will take the present office of Niccol. This arrangement was consummated by Burgess Hetherington relinquishing his privilege of the office now occupied by the recruiting sergeant. William J. Stroble, councilman from the first ward, told council that he thought fuel oil should be purchased on yearly contracts. By so doing, Stroble argued, the borough will save considerable money over the present method.

Councilman George Duffy inquired concerning the assessment of trailers in the borough, which had been referred to the health and sanitation committee at a previous session. President Byers informed Duffy that it had been found that the trailers not being real estate could not be assessed, but that tax could be levied upon the occupants. Mr. Myers, of the health and sanitation committee, said that his committee had approached the 4th ward assessor concerning this matter.

Stroble read the amendment made sometime ago to the sewer rental ordinance, wherein a special charge is levied on industry. He found fault with the method provided in the amendment and wanted to know if industry had been billed as yet. Councilman Aita complained that industry had never been advised of the amended ordinance. This was explained by President Byers, who said that there had been some delay and that the tariff would have to be filed with the P. U. C.

Councilman Riley read an invitation from a group of towns in New Jersey, which will hold a public meeting March 17th at eight p. m. in Burlington's municipal hall to discuss the channel deepening.

The Bristol Chamber of Commerce wrote council requesting borough cooperation in maintaining the beautification work at the western entrance of the borough. The request also asked the prohibiting of the burning of old automobiles in that area.

the meeting from throughout the south east area which comprises Berks, Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Lancaster, Lehigh, Northampton and Schuylkill counties. The goal for the area has been set at $181,000. Mr. Kira, a retired banker, was born in Lancaster County and was graduated from Oxford high school in 1902. He was in the banking business all of his productive lifetime, except for one year when he taught school and for several years when he studied law. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1915 and was admitted to the bar that same year.

He served as corporate trust officer for the Girard Trust Company, Philadelphia, with which institution he was associated for 33 years. He is a member of the Society of Friends and has been active in Masonic Orders and activities. He is the father of two sons, both of whom served in World War II.

In accepting his appointment as state chairman, Dr. Eisenhower said he was "deeply interested" in the Cancer Society's program "because many of the lives now lost to cancer could be saved if the public were more aware that something can be done about the disease, especially if early symptoms are heeded."

"In addition to our efforts and desires for fulfilling the $880,000 Division goal during April," Dr. Eisenhower said, "the campaign will carry educational messages that will help the public become more familiar with the disease. Education is part of the Society's program to help reduce the cancer death toll. The other two phases are the service projects and research in an effort to find the cause and ultimate cure for cancer."

Dr. Eisenhower is recognized widely as an educator, specialist in agriculture, and expert in government policy and administration. He began his career as a newspaperman, but following his graduation from Kansas State College and a short period on the institution's journalism faculty, his interest in foreign affairs led to his appointment as vice consul to Edinburgh, Scotland.

After a number of years in government service he became president of his alma mater, Kansas State, and served there until his appointment as the 11th president of Penn State, July 1, 1950.

Reminds Spring is Time For New Outlook in Home

WARRINGTON, Mar. 11 — A home decorator, Mrs. Ann Mason, appeared before the Warrington Women's Club Friday. Reminding the members that "Spring is the time for a new outlook in the home as well as in clothing fashions," she added: "One finds new feelings and designs in carpets which give new outlooks in homes. The rugs are the largest unbroken area and when choosing a rug first consider family ages and activities."

"Make a scrap book of decorators' ideas, using colors and sample fabrics, then choose a color that suits you and your tastes and the style of your furniture."

Mrs. Mason showed 12 decorators' schemes using sample carpets, fabrics, drapes and furniture.

Mrs. Edwin Ritter presided at the business meeting when letters from Brownie and Scouts were read in thanks for being entertained at a covered dish supper. A letter was read from the club's Italian foster child in appreciation for his Christmas package.

Mrs. Henry Garges reported plans for the May banquet when the husbands will be guests and the club voted to change the date to Saturday, May 5th. Mrs. Francis Green gave a report on the cakes, cookies and candy sent to Valley Forge Hospital, Phoenixville, for a birthday party.

GREEN LANE & HIGHWAY ~ BRISTOL

generations would be needed to complete the trip.

In Dr. Ehrlicke's opinion, Mars would be a more logical target than Venus. He explains:

"Mars is the most desirable, accessible and interesting of the nearby planets. Venus is more inaccessible, mysterious and hazardous to land on because of its great atmospheric disturbances and unknown surface conditions."

A space ship to Mars would stay outside that planet's atmosphere, using a Mars moon—actually a rock satellite—just as the artificial earth satellite would be used. From the outer edge of the atmosphere, the trip down to Mars would be made in landing gliders.

Dr. Ehrlicke says visitors to the fabled planets—rich hunting ground for science fiction writers—would wear space suits to provide warmth as well as oxygen. The Mars atmosphere is deadly, without oxygen and bitterly cold.

The scientist says it would not be easy to land on the moon, which does not have an atmosphere of its own. A first trip would consist of circling the body to get a close look and returning to earth.

Space ships for these inter-planetary flights would vary in size for the distances to be traveled. They would be spherical in shape, with streamlining unnecessary due to the absence of friction in space.

Forget the Buck Rogers concept of a space ship with men looking through windows as other ships—or meteors—shoot by. Dr. Ehrlicke says no transparent material would provide sufficient protection against deadly cosmic rays penetrating the vacuum of space. Any viewing of the outside would be by television.

Dr. Ehrlicke's plans for a long-range space ship follow the principle of an egg. The outer shell would be light and consist of several layers to filter out or transform the wave lengths of incoming radiation and to provide a mechanical hull for the propellant.

Inside the shell, oxidizer and fuel would be stored separately. The living space of the crew would be located in the fuel tank, providing maximum protection. Lifeboat rockets would be provided for each crew member. A rubber lining inside the living quarters would serve as protection if a person—without weight and unable to talk normally—pushed too hard from one wall and bounced himself off another wall.

A major problem for long trips would be personnel. One person could look at another for ten days without going berserk, but 32 months or longer... Dr. Ehrlicke feels that a person who developed claustrophobia or had a nervous breakdown would be quite out of place within the confines of a space ship.

Dr. Ehrlicke, who helped develop the German V-2 bomb, is primarily occupied now with development of military guided missiles and rockets for the U. S. Army as one of more than 400 German scientists grabbed at the close of the war before the Russians could get them.

But space travel is the goal to which he has dedicated his life. Until he goes to Mars, or the moon, Dr. Ehrlicke is spending his vacations with his wife and six-year-old daughter seeing what he can of the United States. He says:

"When I settle down to live here, I would select a spot somewhere in Southern California. The deserts and the mountains—the general terrain—are the nearest of anything I've seen on earth to the surface of Mars."

CHICAGO—(INS)—The outbreak of fires caused by "hot" sweaters has brought a warning from a fire insurance safety expert. Dale K. Auck of Chicago, a fire protection engineer, says there are many other personal products that catch fire and burn easily. "Oiled silk," he says, "rayon and cotton with a long, fine nap are very dangerous fire hazards. Women should stay away from open fireplaces or stoves while wearing these materials."

WARRIORS READY TO BATTLE WITH COATESVILLE TEAM

Elated over its victory over Central Bucks, the Bristol High basketball team will meet the Coatesville High Red Raiders tonight at Penn. Palestra. As there is a preliminary game scheduled for 7.30 p. m., the Bristol-Coatesville tilt will start at 9 o'clock.

In meeting Coatesville, Chest-Mont champions, Bristol is facing the strongest opposition of the season for the Red Raiders have won 19 games and lost 2. It captured the Chest-Mont League with a 12 and 1 record, beating Pottstown in the final game to win the crown.

Walt Funk, of Penn. State, is coach of the Coatesville contingent. It is his first year as varsity basketball coach and a noted improvement has been seen in the Coatesville team. The Red Raiders scored 344 points during the season, averaging 68 points per contest.

Two of the outstanding players on the Raiders are Jim Lopp and Ronnie Brown. Lopp has averaged 16 points per contest while Brown has an average of 12 points per game. Others in the starting Coatesville lineup will be Don Pryor, Ernie Bryant, and Marty Randler.

Coach Funk has used both the zone defense and man-for-man defense during the season and may use the latter defense against the Warriors tonight.

The game will mark the third time that Bristol has reached the semi-finals of the P. L. A. A. tournament. Under Coach Jerry Bloom in 1947-48, the team beat West Chester to enter the semi-finals only to lose out to Norristown. Again Bloom led the team to the semi-finals in 1948-49 when it defeated the Conshohocken Golden Bears. However, Radnor won over the locals to put them out of the running. In both cases, Norristown and Radnor became the district one champions. In the 1949-50 season, Bristol was eliminated in the first round by West Chester.

Coach Ben Watson has moulded together a fine Bristol quintet and seeks to reach the finals. Coach Watson was elevated to varsity coach this season, replacing Bloom who was elected athletic director and director of intramural sports.

Coach Watson's team has won 16 games and lost 12. Included in the 12 losses are four forfeits.

The team fought an uphill battle to eliminate Central Bucks from the playoffs. The Bristolians trailed from the start until three minutes remained to be played.

A gleaming light in the Bristol triumph was its amazing foul shooting during the second half. It was the charity tosses in this half which gave the Warriors the win as they dropped in 9 of their 12 free shots. All season, foul shooting was Bristol's weakest point but against Doylestown, it was the best offensive weapon.

The showing of Frankie Manzo, a sophomore, was very impressive. Manzo proved very aggressive in the time he was in action against Central Bucks and is almost certain to see more action against Coatesville tonight.

It is most likely that Coach Watson will start Bob Strohele, Andy Arcardi, Jim Gallagher, Harold Loud, and Raul Stevens.

The winner of tonight's fracas will play Chester, Thursday night at the Palestra for the District One crown.

TWO CLOSE GAMES

Two close games were played in the intramural league of the Bristol High School yesterday. The Eleventh Grade III eked out a 20-18 win over Tenth Grade II while the 11th Grade II topped the Twelfth Grade II, 23-21. In the other game played, Eleventh Grade 3-Y walloped the Tenth Grade I, by a 49-22 score.

CORNWELLS BOYS WIN SIX IN A ROW AND TIE FOR CROWN

Winning its sixth straight game, the Cornwells Boys Club assured itself of at least a tie for the championship of the Bristol Basketball League by beating the Hibernians, 62-56, last night on the Goodwill Hose Company court.

Luciano Brothers is the only team in the loop that can tie the Cornwells boys for first place as the Hibernians and Rohm & Haas were both eliminated last night.

The game was closely-fought and settled in the last five minutes of playing. The Hibs had a one-point lead, 54-53, when "Eddie" Oliver scored a field goal to put Cornwells ahead. The lead was increased on field goals by Jim Caskey and Oliver. Bill Burr's two-point cut the lead but Caskey's ninth field goal of the night settled the issue.

Caskey and Oliver were high for the Cornwells team with 23 and 21 points, respectively. Charlie Brady and Charlie Simmons were top men for the Hibs with 13 and 10 points, respectively.

HILLTOP UPSETS ROHM & HAAS; WINS, 83 TO 38

In one of the major upsets of the Bristol Basketball League, the tail-end Hilltop A. C. courtsters trounced the Rohm & Haas team, 83-38, last night on the Goodwill Hose Company court.

The cellar-dwellers had one of those nights where every shot dropped through the hoop. It made a total of 33 field goals and 17 fouls to roll up their score.

Hilltop had a 17-7 lead in the first quarter and a half-time margin of 37-16. At the end of the third session, the Hilltoppers were in front by the wide margin of 55-23. Don LeHuquet was high for the winning team with 30 points. He re-

TULLYTOWN BOROUGH CREATES A WATER AND SEWER AUTHORITY FOR BOROUGH AND ADJACENT AREA

Personnel is Named for The Authority, and Incorporation is To Be Sought; Resolution Creating Authority is Released for Publication.

TULLYTOWN, Mar. 11 — With one member absent Tullytown Borough Council last evening unanimously adopted a resolution creating a water and sewer authority, designated "The Levittown authority."

Portions of the resolution reads: "Whereas the council of the Borough of Tullytown deems it necessary for the benefit and preservation of the public health, peace, comfort and general welfare of the residents of the borough and of the territories adjacent thereto, that an authority be formed by this municipality under the provisions of the Municipalities Authorities Act of 1945 (Act of May 2, 1945, P. L. 382, as amended and supplemented);

BE IT RESOLVED by the Council of the Borough of Tullytown that the said Council shall organize an Authority under the Municipalities Authorities Act of 1945 (Act of May 2, 1945, P. L. 382, as amended and supplemented) as follows:

Those named to the authority are: Walter W. Weynlich, 5 years; William Hill, four years; William McKay, three years; Charles Luciani, two years; William L. Leigh, one year.

Advertising of the authority is expected to be placed within the next few days with subsequent incorporation. Council decided to have safety lines painted on the streets and to have speed-limit signs erected. Due to illness, Harry June, was unable to attend.

The resolution reads:

RESOLUTIONS

WHEREAS, the Council of the Borough of Tullytown deems it necessary for the benefit and preservation of the public health, peace,

Mrs. E. J. Laing Found Dead at Her Residence

Death occurred suddenly yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Beatrice May Laing (nee Priestley), Newport road, Bristol township. A neighbor paying a call at the Laing residence in mid-afternoon, found Mrs. Laing's lifeless body on the kitchen floor. It is presumed that she was fatally stricken while preparing her lunch an hour or two previous.

Cause of death, according to the Deputy Coroner, Dr. William L. Goldfarb, was coronary occlusion.

Mrs. Laing had appeared to be in good health, having returned from Florida a few days ago.

The deceased was born in Bristol 61 years ago, and had lived in Bristol borough and Bristol township throughout her life-time. Daughter of the late William H. and Elizabeth Priestley, she is survived by her husband, Dr. Edward J. Laing; two sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Margaret Bean, Stratford, Conn., Miss Marian Priestley, Edward and William Priestley, of Bristol.

Mrs. Laing was a member of Bristol Meeting of Friends.

There will be no viewing. Interment is arranged for four o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Friends burial ground, here, it being from the funeral home of John C. Black. A memorial service is arranged for Sunday, March 16th, at two p. m., in the Friends Meeting House, Wood and Market streets.

Mrs. Sozio, 415 Washington street, is receiving oxygen from equipment of Bucks County Rescue Squad. The squad transported Mrs. Atlyn Owens, 1022 Trenton avenue, to Abington Hospital yesterday, and Mrs. Mary Schoen, Oxford Valley and Hulmeville roads, Falls township, to Abington Hospital.

CLEANING OUT THE CROOKS

President Truman's blast at Congress, refusing to permit his departments to release the information which might lead to trapping the thieves in his administration, is enough to make cynics laugh and angels weep.

If anyone in this broad land still thought that the President was in earnest in his pretense of wanting to help clean out the crooks and punish the pilferers, this new statement should open their eyes.

The fact is that the crooks and cronies at Washington "never had it so good." They have their feet in the trough, billions of dollars of YOUR money is passing through their hands, and when the situation becomes too much for the stomachs of everyone else, there is still President Truman, with his warped sense of loyalty, to stand between them and retribution.

The President has crippled many efforts to ferret out the sellers of favors and the plunderers of public resources, but never has he struck a more devastating blow than this.

Remember the facts — they are simple and easy to understand. The Congressional probers called upon the departments of government to furnish a list of cases which had been referred to the Department of Justice, and then either tossed in the waste basket there, or delayed for long periods of time.

Since the question being investigated was whether the Department of Justice was being honestly run, that was the obvious (and in fact, almost the only) approach to the truth.

But President Truman put his foot down. He refused to allow the information to be turned over to Congress. This, he said, represented a "dragnet" method — let Congress investigate "specific" cases. But how can

Dr. Ehrlicke Says Such is Entirely Within Realm of Possibility

AID FROM SATELLITE

Trips to the moon or Mars are "entirely within the realm of possibility" in the lifetime of present generations in the opinion of guided missile expert Dr. Kraft A. Ehrlicke. Following is the second of two articles by International News Service staff correspondent Hugh L. Morris, based on an interview with Dr. Ehrlicke, former German scientist now at the U. S. Army's Redstone Arsenal Research Center.

By Hugh L. Morris
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Mar. 11 — (INS)—If you are young and adventuresome, one of the world's outstanding guided missile authorities advises you to start saving your pennies for a trip to the moon. In the opinion of Dr. Kraft A. Ehrlicke, wartime German V-2 expert now at the U. S. Army's Redstone Arsenal Development Center, an excursion to the moon or Mars is "entirely within the realm of possibility" in the lifetime of present generations.

What's more, Dr. Ehrlicke, now 34 years old, fully expects to be a passenger on the first space ship to go literally "out of this world." Dr. Ehrlicke envisions, as a starting point for inter-planetary travel, the erection of an artificial satellite.

SELF-EMPLOYED NEED S. S. ACCT NUMBERS

With Income Tax Deadline Near, Should Obtain Them at Once

TO RECEIVE CREDIT

With only a few days remaining for the filing of income tax returns, all self-employed persons who need social security account numbers should obtain them immediately. This advice was given today by Ruben R. Blane, manager of the social security office in the Trenton Post Office Building.

Blane said that unless the account number is recorded on the income tax return, those who work for themselves may not receive social security credits for their earnings and as a result, their future benefits may be reduced.

He explained that the new law covered all self-employed persons on a compulsory basis except operators of farms, physicians, dentists, lawyers, osteopaths, chiropractors, optometrists, naturopaths, veterinarians, architects, professional engineers, accountants, funeral directors, and Christian Science practitioners.

Self-employed persons under social security will have the same

Demonstrates Photography To Boys' Brigade Members

A demonstrated lecture on the fundamentals of photography was presented Thursday night by William A. Painter, of Philadelphia, to the members of the Bristol Boys' Brigade. This was given in the Calvary Baptist Church as a part of the regular program arranged for boys 12 through 18 years of age.

The Bristol Boys' Brigade features a weekly two-hour program consisting of various projects. At the present time they are working on leather wallets, knot-tying, first-aid, and signaling, as well as some smaller interests. The work period is followed by a recreation period during which the boys enjoy weight-lifting, basketball, and table games of skill.

Mr. Painter showed the boys how a camera works, how to take pictures, what happens when the light rays hit the negative, and how a photograph is made. Thursday night he will demonstrate by the use of trays, a photographic printer, and an enlarger, what really happens when a picture is developed and how to enlarge a picture.

The organization has recently added three new members to its group.

Bristol News Agency Broken Into and Robbed

The Bristol News Agency at the Penna. R. R. passenger station was broken into sometime during the night. Twenty cartons of cigarettes and approximately $20 in cash is reported to have been stolen.

Police say that entrance was gained through the rear of the building by means of a trap door. Police Officer Chichletti is investigating.

NO HEIRS LISTED FOR THE ESTATE OF JOHN W. ELLIS

Letters of Administration Granted to John J. Fitzgerald

THE LONG ESTATE

Late Ivyland Woman Leaves $1,000 to Church at Hartsville

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 11 — John J. Fitzgerald, Yardley, was granted letters of administration in the estate of John Wm. Ellis, Upper Makefield township, amounting to $500. There are no heirs, and the decedent died Dec. 27, 1951, leaving a vacant lot in Solebury township.

Neshaminy Presbyterian Church of Warwick, Hartsville, was bequeathed $1,000 by M. Elta Long, Ivyland, whose will was probated in the Register of Wills Office, here.

The testatrix, who died Jan. 15, left an estate of $7,000. She bequeathed $500 in trust to the Neshaminy Presbyterian Church of Warwick Cemetery Company. The will was dated July 17, 1950.

Mrs. M. Blanche Smith, Atlantic City, was given permission to take jewelry and clothing which she had given to the testatrix, Susan Starkey, Ivyland; Anna Titus, Glenside; Hazel Carr, Hatboro, and Marie Carr, Rushland, were bequeathed antiques, clothing, jewelry and household effects. Susan Starkey, Ivyland, was also named the residuary beneficiary. Jenkintown National Bank & Trust Company was named co-executor with Lewis Starkey, Ivyland.

In a pencil-written, holographic codicil, on a small note of paper, Lilli M. Haldeman, Doylestown, bequeathed $100 to her church which was not designated by a formal name.

The testatrix, who died Jan. 7, left a $1400 estate. She stipulated that her family relics be sold. She also gave $100 to the Point Pleasant Cemetery Co. Four children, Raymond, Alice, Frank and Otis Haldeman, were named heirs in the will which was dated Nov. 28, 1945.

75 MORE TEACHERS NEEDED IN SCHOOLS

They Will Be Required To Teach At Levittown

2,000 MORE PUPILS

Seventy-five additional teachers will be required to take care of the influx of 2,000 pupils who will be moving into Levittown during 1952, County School Authorities announced this morning.

An accurate tabulation of the children in all families who have already purchased new homes in Levittown reveals that while there is less than 3 of a child of elementary school age per house, there are twice as many children of pre-school age. It would appear that within six years the first 5,000 homes will have over 4,000 children of elementary school age.

Falls Township will lead the school districts in the number of houses in the 1952 Levittown program with 500 units more than Bristol Township. Bristol Township is expected to have around 1800 units. Middletown will have 500 new homes and Tullytown about 300.

BRISTOL COUNCIL ADOPTS TENTATIVE BUDGET ON FIRST READING; CALLS FOR A ONE-MILL INCREASE IN THE TAX RATE, THIS TO BE FOR RECREATIONAL PURPOSES

Council Proceedings To Be Wire Recorded

Proceedings of Bristol Borough Council are to be wire-recorded. This was decided upon, last evening, when S. Joseph Aita, II, complained that the minutes of council meetings are not sufficiently elaborated. Aita, specifically, referred to the last meeting, when he thought the secretary, Mrs. Agnes Coles, should have elaborated more upon some of the discussions held in council.

Council voted to have the price of a wire recorder investigated, and to procure one. The secretary will then transcribe her minutes from the wire record.

BENNER'S CATTLE SELL FOR $14,950

Thirty-One Registered Holsteins Put On the Auction Block

EQUIPMENT ALSO SOLD

LANGHORNE, Mar. 11 — Almost 500 people attended an auction at the Linford C. Benner farm on Hulmeville road, east of Rt. 150, yesterday, as buyers from as far away as Delaware and Connecticut bid on Benner's pure Holstein herd, his equipment and his buildings. Everything except the land and Benner's house was for sale yesterday. Benner's 73-acre farm was purchased by Levitt and Sons, Inc., on Dec. 29, 1951.

Thirty-one registered Holsteins, including two heifers and two bulls, were sold at the auction for a total of $14,950. Largest buyer of the day was Herman K. Kuthe, of Neshanic, N. J., who purchased 12 for $6,985.

R. Austin Backus, Mexico, N. Y., professional auctioneer covering 12 states, handled the sale. Mr. Backus stated: "The Holsteins sold for an average of $515. This is very high, but in keeping with the high standard of the herd."

Frank Coffey, Newtown, purchased Wimbledon Bonheur Emperor Lad, a 6-year-old bull, for $640. Thomas Civiley, Salem, N. J.; Cas-

QUALIFICATIONS LOWERED

S/Sgt. James M. Major, of the local recruiting office, announced today that the basic qualifications for a person to apply for training as an aviation cadet within the United States Air Force has been lowered to a high school graduate. This move was taken in order to obtain more men between 18 and 24 for flying training, because these ages are more physically adept to requirements of flying the high speed aircraft of today. The only clause is that the initial application must be made from within the service. That means that the man must be in the service at the time of application.

Any young men who are not married and are high school graduates should contact S/Sgt. Major at the Recruiting office, municipal building, for information.

Model Planes in Air

Sound Like Bee Swarms

Sunday's spring-like weather brought members of Bristol Aero-modelers out for a Sunday afternoon model plane flying session on the Hunter-Wilson field in full force with three or more model planes powered by small two cycle gasoline engines. In the air simultaneously the area sounded like an angry hive of bees. A crowd of several hundred spectators was on hand.

Most of the flying was done by control-line type model planes. Control-line is so called because the models are flown on long stainless steel wires which transmit controls from the model pilot to the model so that any type of maneuver except rolls may be accomplished. Several crack-ups took place among the models flown because of damaged or kinked wires that either jammed together or snapped during flight. Over-eager spectators often fail to observe these thin wires lying on the ground and frequently become ensnared in them with resultant kinks and damage to the model plane's control system.

A most spectacular display of model "combat" flying was performed by Henry Weller, Albert Abrams, Sr., and Charles Bahr. In this display ten foot paper streamers were attached to the tail of each model and all planes were put into flight at once. Each model pilot tried to "attack" the streamers of the other models with the propeller of his craft and at the same time evading the "attacks" of other planes. Everything in this display went fine until Weller's craft struck Abrams' wing with its propeller causing Abrams to dive into Bahr's model which lost nearly an entire wing panel in the accident. He was able to complete his flight and bring down his craft to a smooth landing much to the surprise of the watching crowd.

Club leader members were pleased to see the number of young model enthusiasts who turned out with airworthy craft.

These flying sessions will be held each week-end until May, when outdoor club meetings will be held on Wednesday evenings, and Sundays will be spent at nearby contests.

Storm Does Damage Here

The high wind and rain storm sweeping out of the south-east did considerable damage in the Bristol area today. Lowlands were flooded, tree limbs and rain spouting ripped off. A large cinder block wall at the plant of Kaiser Metal Products, Inc. collapsed.

High water in the Delaware River is scheduled for mid-afternoon, and river front residences in some sections are apprehensive.

The wall on Kaiser property was being erected by McClain Construction Company, Philadelphia. Of cinder block construction it was to form the north-west wall of the new aircraft assembly building. The portion which fell outward measured about 200 feet long, and 10 feet high, according to John Trauger, estimator for the McClain Co. He states that the wall had been erected about one month ago, and was only partially built. No workmen were on the job this morning due to the rain. The strong wind forced the wall over with a reverberating crash. Loss is estimated by Trauger at $3500 to $4000, this including material and workmanship. No trusses had been placed as yet.

Water was quite deep on North Radcliffe street near the eastern end of the Kaiser Corp. plant, and automobiles proceeded with difficulty.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Cuba, land of sugar cane and revolts, experienced a new revolution when former President, Gen. Fulgencia Batista, ousted President Carlos Prio Socarras in a near-bloodless coup. General Batista, called Cuba's "strong man," seized army headquarters, all fortresses and police stations in Havana in much the same manner that he had done in ousting the Machado regime in 1933. Ever since that time Cuba has sought peace, order and economic betterment. Washington had had no indication that General Batista had planned a coup.

Retaliating "reluctantly" for curbs placed by the Soviet Union on the travel of American diplomats, this country restricted the movement of Soviet personnel to areas within a 25-mile radius of Washington and New York, except on forty-eight hours' prior notice. Other Western nations took similar action. The Kremlin handed American, British and French representatives in Moscow a new note, presumably on Germany.

Allied truce negotiators in Korea charged the Soviet Union with arming North Korean and Chinese forces with a wide variety of weapons. In the fighting, Allied jets brought down seven enemy MIG's and damaged three.

Newbold Morris named Morton Baum of New York his chief aide in the investigation into corruption

GIRL WITH CHARACTER

The first "canvas" the late Howard Chandler Christy ever had, according to one newspaper biography, was the door of his father's barn in Morgan County, O. What the young man painted there the obituary didn't say. But everybody who was old enough to notice in the days when the illustrator was on the heights can recall what he put on the nation's magazine covers and many of their inside pages. The Christy Girl, no less.

She followed the Gibson Girl,
the creation of Charles Dana Gibson, who was the idol of young American manhood around the turn of the century—and who continues to pop up in the fashions time and again after all these years.

There may have been a Fisher Girl in between, or perhaps she came later. No matter. It was the Christy Girl who really inherited the crown. And she deserved it.

"The biographies describe that vision in her first appearances.
She wore a bustle and a high-necked shirt-waist. These items of attire disappeared early in her long day. But whatever she wore she had a certain distinction.
Christy himself said she was high-bred and aristocratic and dainty, though not always silken-skirted
—a woman "with a tremendous self-respect." She was not a lass with a delicate air, though the word "lady" then still had some connotations that are now lost.

What she had was something downright American in her make-up. She was the kind of American girl who acts as though she is beautiful whether she is or not—and thereby achieves an appeal not to be attributed to face or figure. Christy felt she was more than a pretty girl. He insisted that real beauty comes from character.
That is something many artists never learn, though it is no secret.
It may have been the explanation for his success as an illustrator.

WHITE TIRES AGAIN

Predictions from Washington are to the effect that white sidewall tires, the de luxe type, will be officially sanctioned by June 1. Manufacture of this line of tires was ordered halted a year and a half ago to conserve natural rubber.

With rubber sticking out of the government's ears, and the price of the natural product weakening, this restriction will probably be removed after several hundreds of persons on the government payroll engage in research, investigation and issue voluminous reports on the subject.

Why not just bypass the statistics boys and let the rubber industry decide what kinds of tires it wants to produce? The rubber is available for white sidewall or any other type of tires, any quantity the public demands.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.
(Copyright, 1952,
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 11 — If there ever was an example of carrying coals to Newcastle, it was a recent State Department report labeling present leaders of the Greek government corrupt.

Look who is talking. There are now well over 100 U. S. government officials who have been fired, have resigned or have been suspended from their jobs for corrupt practices ranging from outright thievery to petty pilfering from the gift racks of five per centers. And the various Congressional investigations and independent probes are just getting warmed up.

Actually, in hanging a corruption rap on Greek government officials, the State Department was simply performing old tricks. It is standard operating procedure for Secretary of State Dean Acheson's Muscovite stooges in the department to find something wrong with every government that displays any friendship for the U. S. A.—with the exception of the British.

Only those with short memories in politics will fail to recall the treatment accorded Chiang Kai-Shek by the State Department when his back was to the wall in his battle with the Chinese Communists. Chiang was called corrupt and worse, and all of his aides and assistants were relegated to the criminal class by the stuffed shirts in the State Department.

The same thing happened to Philippine government officials
when they were in the midst of trying to restore order in the islands
after World War II. The Communist-led Hukbs were trying to take over the government and they almost succeeded after a big propaganda boost from a special U. S. mission which labeled all the loyal leaders as thieves and worse.

Nobody, of course, except those sharing the loot, can condone corruption. But it seems odd that only anti-communist governments get splattered by the State Department.

The Greeks are still hard at work rebuilding their country and trying to keep the Communists from creeping back across the border. They need our help, instead of our insults, and if there is any corruption it will be up to the elected government to weed out the thieves. It may take time, just as it did in the U. S., before honest officials catch up with the crooks. But it will happen, just as it did here, despite Presidential descriptions of cleanup efforts as "asinine."

The State Department added a new twist to its slander of the friendly Greek officials, who are cooperating 100 per cent with us in trying to ward off Communist aggression. This gimmick comprised preparation of a confidential report at the American embassy in Athens, in which all Greek political leaders were described as corrupt, and subsequent "leakage" of the report to the Communists. They, of course, promptly started flaying loyal Greek leaders with its words.

The facts concerning the incident were revealed at a current spy trial at Athens. Twenty-nine Communists are on trial, charged with running a Soviet-financed underground in Greece. The most prominent Red, Nicholas Beloyannis, has admitted the existence of the underground.

But he also said on the witness stand:

"A well-known Rightist whose name I cannot disclose gave us a confidential report of the American Embassy — naturally with its consent — in which all Greek political leaders were described as corrupt."

Washington State Department officials shudder, groan and cry
"fool" every time Senator Joseph R. McCarthy or someone else comes up with a confidential document revealing another Red on the payroll. Yet, at the American Embassy in Athens, it is all right to scatter confidential documents around among their Communist friends for use against Greek government officials whose biggest error appear-ently is trying to help the United States fight the Communists.

It was the same with Chinese and Philippine government officials.
Chiang Kai-Shek caught it the worst, of course. He was then in dire need of more U. S. money and military equipment and the issue was before Congress. When the State Department dropped its "fool" bundle there was an immediate hue and cry from the capital hill. State Department mouthpieces in Congress lathered the air with anti-Chiang charges. This only encouraged the Communists to keep on trying.

Maybe that is what the Russian lovers in the State Department want the Greek Communists to do. Until a better explanation comes along this one will have to do.

65 or later, he and his family may receive monthly insurance benefits.
No matter what his age at the time of his death, however, his survivors may receive payments also. As in the case of employees, the self-employed must be covered long enough under the law to qualify.

The following table for estimating monthly payments is based on average earnings for at least two years after 1950:

Average Monthly Earnings	Retirement Payment	Widow Over 65 At 65	Widow Under 65	Child
$ 50.00	$25.00	$37.50	$18.80	$37.50
100.00	50.00	75.00	37.50	75.00
200.00	65.00	97.50	48.80	97.50
300.00	80.00	120.00	60.00	120.00

Talbot Presents "Voice And The Personality"

NEWTOWN, Mar. 11—"Voice and The Personality" was presented by John Talbot, English instructor at George School for the past 18 years, at the dinner meeting of Newtown Exchange Club, Thursday evening, in the Temperance House.

"Today," said Mr. Talbot, "too much emphasis is placed on writing and too little on speech." The voice has an hypnotic effect on some people, and an emotional effect on others. Radio has helped greatly as a medium of persuasion in presented popular opinions, particularly in elections, the power of swaying being very evident in many voices. Now, with television, we may see as well as hear our proponents. Mr. Talbot had with him recordings of various personalities in demonstration of their ability to sway audiences. He demonstrated with various of the club members, recording their voice, and then playing it back.

Gildo Sissoldo was the guest of Robert Hunt, Robert McClanen, Richboro, and James Tate were welcomed as new members.
F. Stewart Whittam, conducted

the business meeting, 27 attending.
The committee for the March programs include Clarence Krewson, chairman; Paul Blanshard, Jr., Robert Steele, Preston Van Arts-dalen.

How to save time on Long Distance Calls

CALL BY NUMBER

Fast as Long Distance is these days, it is even faster when you place your calls by number, rather than giving the name and address of the party you want to reach.

The time you save on a single call may not seem important. But when you realize that millions of such calls are being placed every day, you will quickly see that the total time saved is a vital contribution to the Nation's defense effort.

We'd like to handle all your out-of-town calls this time-saving way. You'll find that calling by number will be easier if you keep a record of the out-of-town numbers you have occasion to call. We have prepared a convenient Personal Telephone Directory in which to list such numbers. If you'd like a copy, just ask the Business Office for one.

When you call by number your calls go through faster... often twice as fast.

they get a line on specific cases, if the door is thus slammed in their face?

They did want specific cases — they wanted those cases where responsible persons in the government, working under Mr. Truman, and after investigating the facts, agreed that criminal prosecutions were in order, and so notified the Attorney General — only to have the prosecution called off for reasons never revealed, but which, in innumerable cases, almost certainly involve payoffs and political favoritism.

This is about as crooked as a government can get. No wonder the thieves are having a field day! No wonder the Pendergast cronies and their pals think Truman is wonderful!

What can the American people do about it?

That question promptly leads to another — what was the machinery set up under the Constitution whereby it was intended that organized stealing condoned and protected by the Executive Branch of government might be smashed up and cleaned out?

There are three fairly obvious approaches, quite aside from the investigative and legislative power of Congress. One is the Department of Justice itself. Its original purpose was to be an administration policeman, routing out the crooks and sending the thieves to jail. But today it is the Department of Justice which is accused of being crooked. It has sold itself out, so far as the people are concerned, and become a wing of the political party in power.

Second great policing agency intended by the writers of the Constitution was the Federal system of courts—the judiciary. In such a quarrel as that presently existing, where Congress accuses the President of misusing his powers to protect crooks merely because they are friends or political supporters of his, it was once assumed that the judiciary would be available to pass upon the law and help expose the plunderers.

But the courts have gone political. They have yielded up their high status of "watchdogs of the Constitution," and turned into little more than catspaws for the executive. They are not available for the task of routing gangsters out of the government.

Third great weapon which, as the Constitution was first conceived, would be available to the people, would be the right of impeachment, as used by the people's own (and only) direct representatives in the government—the national Congress. But for a host of reasons, it is wholly impractical to consider impeaching a president, no matter how far short he falls of meeting his responsibilities; and next to impossible to impeach a high Federal official, no matter how much he deserves it.

Is there then no means by which the American people who disbelieve in thievery in their national government, who despise those who are guilty of it and have nothing but contempt for those who stand between the rascals and their exposure and punishment, can restore their government to the high standards it should maintain?

There is one way, and at the moment, perhaps only one way.

That way is to put every candidate for the Presidency, every man whose name is suggested seriously for that assignment, "on the line" on the question. Then elect a man who can and will clean out the crooks.

Let the American electorate find out where each candidate stands — not on mere abstractions, not solely on the generality of whether his intentions are good; good intentions are like Faith without Works, and are well described as the paving material to the Bad Place.

But let's have an expression, categorical and comprehensive, on something much more definite than being "against sin."

Let's hear where the candidates stand on what they would do to keep their associates honest, and how they would go about punishing them if they went wrong.

Let's find out how much each of the candidates knows about the machinery of Federal government, the means by which stealing is committed and the devices by which it can be prevented. At least two Presidents — Grant and Harding — who might have been successful otherwise, suffered serious disrepute because they didn't know enough about the routine of government affairs to keep control of their friends.

And let's find out just how these candidates feel about the record-breaking corruption now so rampant in Washington. Are they against it? Have they done anything to try to curb it? Would they be willing to stand up to President Truman and publicly indict him for the base manner in which he has shielded the culprits at every turn?

As for Truman, one cannot help but be reminded of the famous lines attributed to Cardinal Wolsey, and expressed by Shakespeare thus:

"Had I but served my God with half the zeal
I served my king, he would not in mine age
Have left me naked to mine enemies."

Had Truman but served the American people with half the zeal he has served the crooks and cronies, he would not today be defenseless against the scorn and contempt by honest-minded American citizens.

A Problem Teachers Face

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

SOME gifted experts and writers advising teachers say we must face reality; and yet these very same advisers seem often to run the fastest away from reality.

If all our teachers could be highly trained professionally, if all classrooms could be limited to 20 or 25 children, if very few mothers worked away from home, and if all children were well-disciplined at home, we might well go on urging elementary teachers to put less emphasis at school on order and give children there more and more freedom.

But even with 40, 50 or 60 children in a classroom, a very gifted teacher is able to reach most of these children most of the time. She might even find time to have individual conferences with the parents of these children. But the average teacher, even if she graduated from a modern teachers college, just can't be expected to measure up to the fine ways which look so nearly perfect when we hear or read about them.

Indeed, some of the experts who picture ideal ways for teachers might not be able to follow their own instructions. Most of the advisers of teachers in our schools of education and teachers colleges are constantly applying their theories under almost ideal conditions—small classes, ample equipment, and selected pupils, as a rule.

The girl filled with fine theories and seeing them applied by highly-selected, gifted teachers, may soon be disillusioned when she goes out to teach in a crowded, poorly-equipped classroom; and such classrooms are becoming the rule rather than the exception.

tions upon the birth of a daughter, Susan Elizabeth, in Abington Hospital, Elizabeth.

Charles R. Jones, S. N., spent Mar. 1-2 with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Jones, Curtis Fisher, Johnstown, accompanied him. Both boys are in the same outfit. Their ship is now in drydock at Baltimore, Md.

As an addition to the educational program of Newtown Presbyterian Church, a missionary film will be shown the first Sunday of each month, prior to the Sunday School session. This is a project of the Westminster Fellowship, the young people's organization. Charles and Robert McKenney are projectionists, and Marion Shriver, president, leads the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Lownes entertained Friday evening in honor of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Johnson, recent newweds, who have taken up residence in Edgboro. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. William Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reed and daughter, Miss Elaine Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Smith, Mr. and Mrs. David K. Rishell, Jr.

Mrs. Amos C. Bond has sold her property on Court street and Center avenue to Mr. and Mrs. Karl C. Kaiser, of Penns Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Lownes spent the week-end with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. E. Mackey Corson, at Ocean City, N. J. While there they attended the baptism of their granddaughter, Sandra Louisa.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pownall entertained at dinner, Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walton, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. William J. Pickert and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Montgomery, Glenside; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schlegel, Jenkintown. On Sunday, they entertained at dinner, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bond, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Bond and Mr. and Mrs. David K. Bond.

Mrs. Arthur Roebuck has returned from a three weeks stay at Nassau, the Bahamas. She sailed on the "Ocean Monarch" from New York, N. Y., accompanied by La Baronne Be Watteville, Berckheim, of Paris, France.

Miss Janice Blevins, a student at West Chester State Teachers College, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Blevins. She was the speaker at the Career Day Conference held at Council Rock high school on Friday.

the necessary work done and file liens against the properties. Some of the properties are state owned it was said, and already have liens against them. Most of these are located on Spruce street.

William Wallace, chairman of water committee, asked council to give his committee authority to request federal financial assistance for rehabilitation of the water plant or the building of a new one. "We are still turning down requests for water," Wallace said. "Some are along our present pipe lines."

Wallace reviewed the contacting of Councilman Carl C. King by Burgess Hetherington, and the quick action given by King in making contact with the federal agency which has authority to financially aid critical defense areas in providing community facilities. He spoke of representatives of the agency coming to Bristol and the discussion which was held at that time. He spoke of meeting with Rohm & Haas Co. representatives in an effort to obtain their water re-

Moreover, there are coming to the classroom year by year, more and more children who haven't learned the alphabet of self-control or the ABC's of conformity at home.

I wish those who train teachers and fill them with fine theories would themselves face up more squarely to reality and stop telling these young women they need not give concern to discipline if they apply the new ways of freedom. Why not recognize the practical necessity of some conformities?

Need for Quiet

Certainly there are numerous times in the classroom when all the children need to cease from talking aloud and need to be still enough for the teacher to give directions and instructions meant for all the children present; times, too, when the individual children might concentrate more effectively without undue distractions. For a teacher to try to talk above the din of children's voices when she desires all of them to hear her can't be whole-some then or good preparation for these children when they later join voluntary groups like the Scouts, a church choir or Bible Class.

Yet with some desirable regulations established, it should be much easier to carry on simultaneously certain group activities with considerable freedom, even with what some of us might label as noise. We can help these teachers, of course, through reasonable discipline of our children in our homes. (My bulletin, "How Parents Can Help their Children Succeed at School," may be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper.)

passing stop signs, 3; passing red lights, 1; failure to obtain certificate of title, 1; no inspection sticker, 3; reckless driving, 3; unnecessary noise, 2; operating without a license, 1.

Justice of the Peace Anthony Niccol paid to the borough the sum of $160 in collections and fines, and to the state $120. Councilmen complimented Niccol for thus handling the fines collected. Councilman Joseph Ferry moved a vote of thanks to Justice of the Peace Niccol, and asked why reports are not received from other justices.

Joseph DeLissio, chairman of the street committee, presented five requests for signs and all were approved. He said that the committee is planning to draw up a new sign ordinance, and stated that the request of the police committee to remove some parking meters on Pond near Market street have been refused. He also stated that the request of Bristol-Harriman Business Men's Association that streets in the business district of that section be cleaned bi-weekly, was granted. The committee was authorized to purchase a used bulldozer upon the approval of Borough Engineer Livingston Joyce for use on the dump.

Councilman Ferry, chairman of the fire committee, announced that a fire school had opened March 3rd and was attended by approximately 30 men. He complimented the firemen for having this school, and reported that all the apparatus is in serviceable condition.

Francis J. Byers, president of council and chairman of finance and public property committee, told council the committee had had three meetings to compile the budget. He said that the committee was dissatisfied with the collection of the amusement tax, and thought that more money could be obtained from this source. The figures he quoted showed a decrease last year of approximately $6,000. The ordinance was amended by council, which will transfer the collection of the amusement tax from the office of the secretary back to the borough treasurer. The treasurer had originally collected this tax and then council had put it in the office of the secretary. It now goes back to the treasurer.

Byers informed council he thought it was a possibility that State approval could be obtained for the placing of a traffic light at Bath street and Route No. 13. A request to do this sometime ago had been refused by the state. Council will now file a new request.

Councilman Alta, of the civil service commission, stated three applicants had taken the examination for borough police officer. Only one of the three, he said, Julius Sabol, qualified.

The resignation of John L. Killoyne, as borough solicitor, was received and accepted, and upon motion of Councilman Roche, John P. Fullam, Esq., was elected.

Council voted to transfer the office of Justice of the Peace Niccol into the office now occupied by the army recruiting sergeant, who will take the present office of Niccol. This arrangement was consummated by Burgess Hetherington relinquishing his privilege of the office now occupied by the recruiting sergeant. William J. Stroble, councilman from the first ward, told council that he thought fuel oil should be purchased on yearly contracts. By so doing, Stroble argued, the borough will save considerable money over the present method.

Councilman George Duffy inquired concerning the assessment of trailers in the borough, which had been referred to the health and sanitation committee at a previous session. President Byers informed Duffy that it had been found that the trailers not being real estate could not be assessed, but that tax could be levied upon the occupants. Mr. Myers, of the health and sanitation committee, said that his committee had approached the 4th ward assessor concerning this matter.

Stroble read the amendment made sometime ago to the sewer rental ordinance, wherein a special charge is levied on industry. He found fault with the method provided in the amendment and wanted to know if industry had been billed as yet. Councilman Alta complained that industry had never been advised of the amended ordinance. This was explained by President Byers, who said that there had been some delay and that the tariff would have to be filed with the P. U. C.

Councilman Riley read an invitation from a group of towns in New Jersey, which will hold a public meeting March 17th at eight p. m. in Burlington's municipal hall to discuss the channel deepening.

The Bristol Chamber of Commerce wrote council requesting borough cooperation in maintaining the beautification work at the western entrance of the borough. The request also asked the prohibiting of the burning of old automobiles in that area.

the meeting from throughout the south east area which comprises Berks, Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Lancaster, Lehigh, Northampton and Schuylkill Counties. The goal for the area has been set at $181,000.

Mr. Kirk, a retired banker, was born in Lancaster County and was graduated from Oxford high school in 1902. He was in the banking business all of his productive lifetime, except for one year when he taught school and for several years when he studied law. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1915 and was admitted to the bar that same year.

He served as corporate trust officer for the Girard Trust Company, Philadelphia, with which institution he was associated for 33 years. He is a member of the Society of Friends and has been active in Masonic Orders and activities. He is the father of two sons, both of whom served in World War II.

In accepting his appointment as state chairman, Dr. Eisenhower said he was "deeply interested" in the Cancer Society's program "because many of the lives now lost to cancer could be saved if the public were more aware that something can be done about the disease, especially if early symptoms are heeded."

"In addition to our efforts and desires for fulfilling the $880,000 Division goal during April," Dr. Eisenhower said, "the campaign will carry educational messages that will help the public become more familiar with the disease. Education is part of the Society's program to help reduce the cancer death toll. The other two phases are the service projects and research in an effort to find the cause and ultimate cure for cancer."

Dr. Eisenhower is recognized widely as an educator, specialist in agriculture, and expert in government policy and administration. He began his career as a newspaperman, but following his graduation from Kansas State College and a short period on the institution's journalism faculty, his interest in foreign affairs led to his appointment as vice consul to Edinburgh, Scotland.

After a number of years in government service he became president of his alma mater, Kansas State, and served there until his appointment as the 11th president of Penn State, July 1, 1950.

Reminds Spring is Time For New Outlook in Home

WARRINGTON, Mar. 11 — A home decorator, Mrs. Ann Mason, appeared before the Warrington Women's Club Friday. Reminding the members that "Spring is the time for a new outlook in the home as well as in clothing fashions," she added: "One finds new feelings and designs in carpets which give new outlooks in homes. The rugs is the largest unbroken area and when choosing a rug first consider family ages and activities."

"Make a scrap book of decorators' ideas, using colors and sample fabrics, then choose a color that suits you and your tastes and the style of your furniture."

Mrs. Mason showed 12 decorators' schemes using sample carpets, fabrics, drapes and furniture.

Mrs. Edwin Ritter presided at the business meeting when letters from Brownie and Scouts were read in thanks for being entertained at a dished dish supper. A letter was read from the club's Italian foster child in appreciation for his Christmas package.

Mrs. Henry Garges reported plans for the May banquet when the husbands will be guests and the club voted to change the date to Saturday, May 5th. Mrs. Francis Green gave a report on the cakes, cookies and candy sent to Valley Forge Hospital, Phoenixville, for a birthday party.

Advices Saving For A Trip To The Moon

lite, which would travel around the earth at a height of 525 miles, making a complete circle every two hours.

He admits that there appears at present to be little commercial value in moon travel. But the intense young scientist points out:

"The keenness and boldness of the human mind, which has progressed from tree-tops to modern cities, keeps prodding man forward to explore the unknown."

"Columbus' critics called his trip folly, but no one—not even Columbus himself—could possibly have imagined just what his voyage would mean."

"People say it would be folly and a great waste of money to go to Mars or to the moon if you can't produce some concrete immediate results. But who knows what such a trip—made in a spirit of curiosity and adventure—might mean two or three hundred years from now?"

Inter-planetary flight would be facilitated greatly by an artificial earth satellite. Dr. Ehrlicke says, but not necessarily completely dependent upon one. Because of the great pull of gravity, it would take about twice as much energy (fuel) for a space ship to go from the earth to Mars as from the satellite to Mars.

Dr. Ehrlicke estimates a round trip to the moon—only 239,000 miles away—would take about ten days. Earth to Mars would require about 32 months, coming and going; to Venus and back, about two years.

The round trip to Pluto, most remote known planet of the solar system nearly four billion miles out, would require 92 years for the round trip. In other words, two generations would be needed to complete the trip.

In Dr. Ehrlicke's opinion, Mars would be a more logical target than Venus. He explains:

"Mars is the most desirable, accessible and interesting of the nearby planets. Venus is more inaccessible, mysterious and hazardous to land on because of its great atmospheric disturbances and unknown surface conditions."

A space ship to Mars would stay outside that planet's atmosphere, using a Mars moon—actually a rock satellite—just as the artificial earth satellite would be used. From the outer edge of the atmosphere, the trip down to Mars would be made in landing gliders.

Dr. Ehrlicke says visitors to the fabled planets—rich hunting ground for science fiction writers—would wear space suits to provide warmth as well as oxygen. The Mars atmosphere is deadly, without oxygen and bitterly cold.

The scientist says it would not be easy to land on the moon, which does not have an atmosphere of its own. A first trip would consist of circling the body to get a close look and returning to earth.

Space ships for these inter-planetary flights would vary in size for the distances to be traveled. They would be spherical in shape, with streamlining unnecessary due to the absence of friction in space.

Forget the Buck Rogers concept of a space ship with men looking through windows at other ships—or meteors—shoot by. Dr. Ehrlicke says no transparent material would provide sufficient protection against deadly cosmic rays penetrating the vacuum of space. Any viewing of the outside would be by television.

Dr. Ehrlicke's plans for a long-range space ship follow the principle of an egg. The outer shell would be light and consist of several layers to filter out or transform the wave lengths of incoming radiation and to provide a mechanical hull for the propellant.

Inside the shell, oxidizer and fuel would be stored separately. The living space of the crew would be located in the fuel tank, providing maximum protection. Lifeboat rockets would be provided for each crew member. A rubber lining inside the living quarters would serve as protection if a person—without weight and unable to talk normally—pushed too hard from one wall and bounced himself off another wall.

A major problem for long trips would be personnel. One person could look at another for ten days without going berserk, but 32 months or longer... Dr. Ehrlicke feels that a person who developed claustrophobia or had a nervous breakdown would be quite out of place within the confines of a space ship.

Dr. Ehrlicke, who helped develop the German V-2 bomb, is primarily occupied now with development of military guided missiles and rockets for the U. S. Army as one of more than 400 German scientists grabbed at the close of the war before the Russians could get them.

But space travel is the goal to which he has dedicated his life. Until he goes to Mars, or the moon, Dr. Ehrlicke is spending his vacations with his wife and six-year-old daughter seeing what he can of the United States. He says:

"When I settle down to live here, I would select a spot somewhere in Southern California. The deserts and the mountains—the general terrain—are the nearest of anything I've seen on earth to the surface of Mars."

CHICAGO—(INS)—The outbreak of fires caused by "hot" sweaters has brought a warning from a fire insurance safety expert. Dale K. Auck of Chicago, a fire protection engineer, says there are many other personal products that catch fire and burn easily. "Oiled silk," he says, "rayon and cotton with a long, fine nap are very dangerous fire hazards. Women should stay away from open fireplaces or stoves while wearing these materials."

No Heirs Listed for The Estate of John W. Ellis

The codicil, bearing the $100 church bequest, was dated Feb. 27, 1949.

Raymond Haldeman, 57 East 4th street, Lansdale, and Alice Haldeman, New Britain, were named the executor and executrix, respectively.

Two children, Morris H. DeCoursey, Riverton, N. J., and Etta DeCoursey, Hartsville, will inherit the $15,000 personal and $8,000 real estate holdings of Holmes S. DeCoursey, Warminster township. The will was dated Jan. 11, 1936, and the testator died Jan. 14. Real estate is located on Bristol road, Hartsville.

The $1300 personal and $6,000 real estate holdings of Pietta Eby, Quakertown, will be shared by five heirs, John, Norwood; Roy, Quakertown; Mary, Rochester, N. Y.; Ralph, Richlandtown, and the Quakertown Trust Company in trust for Elmer E. Massillon, Ohio. The will was made July 12, 1949, and the testatrix died Jan. 22. John Eby, Norwood, and Ralph Eby, Sellersville, RD 1, were named executors.

In the estate of Hazel M. Werner, Fresno, Cal., the mother, Alice Beson, Quakertown, was granted letters of administration amounting to $500. The decedent died April 2, 1951.

The widow, Gertrude E. Miller, Pennel, was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Herman Miller, Lower Southampton township, amounting to $30 personal and $7,000 real estate. The decedent died April 28, 1951.

R. S. Clymer, Quakertown, was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Gertrude L. Clymer, East Rockland township, amounting to $2400. The decedent, who died Dec. 30, 1951, left a husband.

WARRIORS READY TO BATTLE WITH COATESVILLE TEAM

Elated over its victory over Central Bucks, the Bristol High basketball team will meet the Coatesville High Red Raiders tonight at Penn. Palestra. As there is a preliminary game scheduled for 7.30 p. m., the Bristol-Coatesville tilt will start at 9 o'clock.

In meeting Coatesville, Chest-Mont champions, Bristol is facing the strongest opposition of the season for the Red Raiders have won 19 games and lost 3. It captured the Chest-Mont League with a 12 and 1 record, beating Pottstown in the final game to win the crown.

Walt Funk, of Penn. State, is coach of the Coatesville contingent. It is his first year as varsity basketball coach and a noted improvement has been seen in the Coatesville team. The Red Raiders scored 344 points during the season, averaging 68 points per contest.

Two of the outstanding players on the Raiders are Jim Lopp and Ronnie Brown. Lopp has averaged 16 points per contest while Brown has an average of 12 points per game. Others in the starting Coatesville lineup will be Don Pryor, Ernie Bryant, and Marty Rander.

Coach Funk has used both the zone defense and man-for-man defense during the season and may use the latter defense against the Warriors tonight.

The game will mark the third time that Bristol has reached the semi-finals of the P. I. A. A. tournament. Under Coach Jerry Bloom in 1947-48, the team beat West Chester to enter the semi-finals in 1948-49 when it defeated the Conshohocken Golden Bears. However, Radnor won over the locals to put them out of the running. In both cases, Norristown and Radnor became the district one champions. In the 1949-50 season, Bristol was eliminated in the first round by West Chester.

Coach Ben Watson has moulded together a fine Bristol quintet and seeks to reach the finals. Coach Watson was elevated to varsity coach this season, replacing Bloom who was elected athletic director and director of intramural sports.

Coach Watson's team has won 16 games and lost 12. Included in the 12 losses are four forfeits.

The team fought an uphill battle to eliminate Central Bucks from the playoffs. The Bristolians trailed from the start until three minutes remained to be played.

A gleaming light in the Bristol triumph was its amazing foul shooting during the second half. It was the charity tosses in this half which gave the Warriors the win as they dropped in 9 of their 12 free shots.

All season, foul shooting was Bristol's weakest point but against Doylestown, it was the best offensive weapon.

The showing of Frankie Manzo, a sophomore, was very impressive. Manzo proved very aggressive in the time he was in action against Central Bucks and is almost certain to see more action against Coatesville tonight.

It is most likely that Coach Watson will start Bob Strohele, Andy Agardi, Jim Gallagher, Harold Load, and Raul Stevens.

The winner of tonight's fracas will play Chester, Thursday night at the Palestra for the District One crown.

CORNWELLS BOYS WIN SIX IN A ROW AND TIE FOR CROWN

Winning its sixth straight game, the Cornwells Boys Club assured itself of at least a tie for the championship of the Bristol Basketball League by beating the Hibernians, 62-56, last night on the Goodwill Hose Company court.

Luciano Brothers is the only team in the loop that can tie the Cornwells boys for first place as the Hibs and Rohm & Haas were both eliminated last night.

The game was closely-fought and settled in the last five minutes of play. The Hibs had a one-point lead, 54-53, when "Eddie" Oliver scored a field goal to put Cornwells ahead. The lead was increased on field goals by Jim Caskey and Oliver. Bill Burr's two-point cut the lead but Caskey's ninth field goal of the night settled the issue.

Caskey and Oliver were high for the Cornwells team with 23 and 21 points, respectively. Charlie Brady and Charlie Simmons were top men for the Hibs with 13 and 10 points, respectively.

HILLTOP UPSETS ROHM & HAAS; WINS, 83 TO 38

In one of the major upsets of the Bristol Basketball League, the tail-end Hilltop A. C. courtiers trounced the Rohm & Haas team, 83-38, last night on the Goodwill Hose Company court.

The cellar-dwellers had one of those nights where every shot dropped through the hoop. It made a total of 33 field goals and 17 fouls to roll up their score.

Hilltop had a 17-7 lead in the first quarter and a half-time margin of 37-16. At the end of the third session, the Hilltoppers were in front by the wide margin of 55-23.

Don LeHuquet was high for the winning team with 20 points. He received able assistance from Larry Auerweck and Bill McDonnell who contributed 19 and 13 points, respectively.

Toby Oriola and Pat Carnvale hit the double figures for Rohm & Haas, scoring 21 points between them.
